Head of Criminal Team in Sheffield

Email: sheffield.clerk@stjohnsbuildings.co.uk

Phone: 0114 273 8951

Year of Call: 1995

Gordon read Engineering Science at Oxford University 1983-86. He rowed in his college 1st VIII, played hockey for his college 1st XI and chess for the university.

Gordon then attended the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst and was commissioned into The 4th/7th Royal Dragoon Guards, which later became The Royal Dragoon Guards. He passed out top of his Troop Leaders Course. After three years as a Lieutenant and Tank Troop leader, he was promoted Captain to command Recce Troop. In addition, Gordon was Regimental Gunnery Officer, Nuclear Biological and Chemical Warfare Officer, Hockey Officer, Skiing Officer and a Joint Service Mountain Expedition Leader. Thereafter, he attended the Junior Division Staff College, and then became a Brigade Staff Officer under Brigadier Arthur Denaro, where in addition to his military duties he ran the Rhine Army Summer Show and set up the Paderborn Equestrian Centre. He was Army Chess Champion and competed for the Combined Services in the NATO Championships on several occasions. He sat on Court Martial Boards, represented soldiers in Royal Military Police interviews and on Commanding Officer's Orders.

In 1993, Gordon went back to University (Huddersfield) to study law (Post Graduate Certificate of Law). He was University Mooting Champion. He then attended at the Inns of Court School of Law, before being called to the Bar by Lincoln's Inn in 1995. He was the winner of the Gluckstein Prize for advocacy.

Gordon is a keen road cyclist (he regularly takes part in sportives and has taken part in the L'Etape du Tour twice), he continues to play chess (he is a County Master, and in 2011 qualified for the British Chess Championships) and he directs a choir.

As a Barrister, Gordon has an excellent analytical ability and is known for his thoroughness and tough approach, together with high-level advocacy skills.

R v Darren Major (2013): Conspiracy trial involving a fraud on the local authority empty homes renovation grants system. After 12 days of trial, the Crown's case had been significantly undermined by detailed cross-examination, a compromise was achievable which led to a suspended sentence.

R v Stephen Urry (2011): Secured the acquittal of this defendant, who was facing charges in a multi-handed high value mortgage fraud case, following legal argument.

R v Michael Bailey (2009): Secured the acquittal of this defendant who was charged with others with a high value fraud involving a conspiracy to steal diesel from an employer.

Regulatory

Gordon practises in all areas of regulatory work. He is able to provide advice at any stage of the proceedings. He is a very effective and successful trial advocate.

Cases

R v Ean Noble (2017): Represented this Defendant in an Environmental Agency prosecution arising out of activities at Bank End Quarry involving glass recycling, securing a very low level financial penalty and avoiding POCA proceedings.

R v Ean Noble (2015): Listed for a six-week trial. Representing this Defendant in a multi-handed EA prosecution.

R v Jamie Todd (2013): Represented the lead Defendant in this much publicised Environmental Agency prosecution, arising out of unauthorised waste operations of Leeds Paper Recycling Ltd leading to £1.4million clear up costs, securing suspended sentences, and avoiding POCA proceedings.

R v Porter (2012): Four-day trial. Defended in this multi-handed trademark trial.

Personal Injury

Gordon has practised in the field of personal injury since 1995. He has advised in thousands of cases, and prepared countless particulars of claim, defences and schedules of loss etc. He has appeared in many contested personal injury cases including cases where he has been led by Queen's Counsel. He practises in all areas of personal injury including accident at work, deafness, VWF, fatal accident, general road traffic, public liability cases and cases against the MOD. He is known for his ability to produce detailed and case-changing schedules of loss in complex and substantial cases, and for his thorough and detailed pleadings and advice.

Cases

B v M (2018): Secured a substantial six figure payout for the widow and children of a motorcyclist killed in a fatal road traffic accident

Pilton v RMBC (2014): Successfully represented the estate of the deceased in this high profile case. The case involved the bullying of Britt Pilton, a teacher, at work by the school's Deputy Head Teacher, leading to the exacerbation of her bulimia nervosa causing her death. The case was fought on every point by the local council, and resulted in a four-day trial with a significant amount of lay evidence and numerous experts on each side being called in relation to the bullying, the deceased's psychiatric illness and the causation of death.

Holleworth v M.O.D. (2011): In this high profile case, successfully represented an injured submariner who, as a result of an accident on board the submarine HMS Tireless beneath the arctic ice, was physically and psychologically injured, resulting in him being discharged from the Navy. Two of his colleagues were killed in the incident. The Claimant had been a high-flier who would most likely have gone on to have a full and successful career with an extension of service. The case required projections of promotion, length of service and calculations of allowances and pensions that would have been received, together with future likely civilian earnings had he had a full career. The schedules of loss were extremely complicated, lengthy and comprehensive and they ultimately persuaded the M.O.D. to raise their offers of settlement to a significantly higher and appropriate level.

Boot v Guildway: Achieved a significantly higher offer from the defendant as a result of his detailed and persuasive schedules of loss of earnings for a professional self-employed man.

Violet Clark & 16 Others v Severn Trent Water Ltd: Represented 17 Claimants in this long-running public liability case, following flooding of their homes as a result engineering works carried out by Severn Trent.

Conoco Oil Refinery Cases: Represented over 80 Claimant's in this long-running large-scale litigation following an explosion at the Conoco Oil Refinery resulting in physical and psychological injury to numerous workers and some neighbouring residents.

Sheffield Supertram Inquest: Represented the family of the deceased at the Inquest following a fatal road traffic accident on a road shared with tram tracks. This inquest was the precursor to the significant and lengthy Supertram litigation flowing from this and other accidents linked to the Supertram tracks.

Inquests

Gordon has practised in the field of inquest work since 1995. His personal injury work and engineering background often compliment this work. He has appeared in many cases for families of the deceased or interested parties.

Gordon has experience of inquest cases relating to apparent suicides of users of mental health services, and examined whether there had been failure of care, and whether the suicides had been foreseeable and preventable. He acted for parties who potentially fell to be criticised during the inquest process. All criticism was avoided. Skilled at cross-examination, and legal argument. In addition, he has 20 years of experience in the field of personal injury work, and so is adept at understanding medical reports and issues and causation etc.

Courts Martial and Service Law

Gordon's military background gives him a particularly good knowledge of firearms and he regularly acts for soldiers who find themselves before the courts, including Courts Martial and the Courts Martial Appeal Court. His former service leaves him uniquely placed to understand the jargon and the military establishment and the military family.

Cases

R v H (2013): Service Civilian Court, Germany. Represented the teenage son of a soldier facing sexual offences before the Service Civilian Court. Successfully utilised the Crown Court 'application to dismiss' procedure before the SCC in Sennelager, Germany.

R v H (2013): Court Martial Appeal Court, Royal Courts of Justice: Successfully resisted the Service Prosecution Authority appeal against the decision in the above case before the Court Martial Appeal Court. The procedure had apparently not been used before in Courts Martial according to the SPA. Acquittals secured on all charges.
